

Dr. Yi Song Biography

Dr. Song is a Postdoctoral Research Fellow in Haney lab at the University of British Columbia. Yi did his Ph.D. in plant molecular biology at Fudan University in China, where he worked on the regulation of leaf senescence in plants. He is currently working on the molecular basis of how beneficial microbes affect plant immunity and enhance drought tolerance in plants. Yi hopes to utilize microbiome engineering to support sustainable agriculture.