

BARRY HENRY

Barry Henry is the Economic Development Officer (EDO) at Niisaachewan First Nation. As such, Henry assists in the development of plans for the use of traditional lands by community members. The Manomin Research Project is one such initiative as field restoration would stimulate agri-business on reserve. Henry is also responsible for providing training and educational workshops to enhance employability skills for band members. As EDO, Henry co-hosts bi-annual feasts with UoG Researchers to ensure the dissemination of information among potential harvesters and local teachers. Lastly, Henry shares employment opportunities on-reserve, identifying Knowledge Keepers to consult on the Manomin Research Project.
